Track COVID-19's effects on tax deadlines, collections and enforcement

Governments around the world are proactively addressing the economic damage being caused by the COVID-19 virus. Tax cuts, investment incentives and concessions from tax administrators are designed to help alleviate the financial and economic burden that is weighing heavily on the world's taxpayers.

Announcements of administrative policy changes in response to the COVID-19 crisis are arriving quickly. Some of the actions taken include postponed filing and payment deadlines, tax audit suspensions, tax court postponements and more. The EY COVID-19 Tax Controversy Response Tracker provides regular updates on tax administration measures in response to the pandemic, helping you stay up-to-date with tax administration changes, whether proposed or already implemented.
